Celia Welch

Celia Welch's full-service interior design firm is founded on the belief that when design is grounded in simplicity it leads to ease of living. Known for designing homes that reach out and welcome us in, Welch achieves this sensibility through interiors that capture quiet warmth balanced by breezy formality.

With equal emphasis on high-end service and devotion to detail, Celia Welch Interiors offers clients an exquisite level of care and attention. Integral to the design process for Welch and her team is a creative and honest collaboration with clients. This leads to a discovery of tastes, preferences and passions. "In every project, I strive to create a home where my clients show up everywhere, and in every gesture," says the designer.

The firm was launched in 1997 and Welch has been included in Washingtonian's list of Top 20 interior designers. Her projects have been featured in publications such as The Washington Post, Luxe and Home & Design.

With a chic and sophisticated point of view that is expressed through calming simplicity, Celia Welch pursues the design of interiors that say to us, "Come, sit and enjoy."

In designing a newly constructed home, Welch conjured a peaceful environment with a lived-in feel. In the family room, attention was paid to every detail, from door casings, baseboards and moldings with a minimal profile to white walls, ceiling and trim that convey ease and simplicity. Wide-plank white oak floors bring character and warmth. A variety of textures and materials complete the look. PHOTO: ANGIE SECKINGER
